2017 Tax Planning Strategies Seminar

February 2, 2017
Flaster Greenberg

Flaster Greenberg invites you to a complimentary CPE and CLE-qualified program. Take advantage of this unique opportunity to hear from highly qualified tax leaders in our region.

With a new administration taking office in January, we expect the coming year to present a number of changes in the tax laws. The changes could alter the tax landscape of the country and spur a significant amount of planning, strategy, and work.

Please join us for an interactive and thought-provoking discussion that will analyze the current state of the tax laws, the proposed changes to those laws, and the likely modifications to the laws to be promoted by both the incoming Trump administration and the House of Representatives.

We will explore and discuss:

- The future of the individual income tax, corporate income tax, and estate, gift, and generation-skipping transfer tax regimes
- The potential shift in paradigm from estate tax planning to income tax planning
- The controversial proposed regulations under IRC Section 2704 that affect business valuations
- Recommendations for tax planning in this uncertain climate

Speakers include Bernard ("Buz") Eizen, Steven S. Poulathas, and Justin H. Brown, shareholders with Flaster Greenberg PC and members of the firm's Taxation, Family Wealth Preservation, and Business Law practice groups.
