Practicing law is a business. Every lawyer should know how to maximizing profits while staying in ethical boundaries. Knowing who your clients are and what services they use your firm for is crucial to understanding your business. A big component to running any successful business is making effective use of your resources, this includes carving out time to focus on your business while still devoting time to solving your clients problems.

This entirely new NJICLE program will discuss some of the practice management and ethical issues every practitioner deals with on a daily basis. FG's Director of Marketing, Krista Egan, and shareholder Bill Skinner will serve on the panel for this event.
