During the last 50 years, the number and scope of women-owned businesses have risen at a virtually unprecedented rate. This historic expansion is due to the efforts of courageous women who have been willing to take the leap and become entrepreneurs, at times capitalizing on groundbreaking legislation specifically related to equality. Today, women are starting and growing their own businesses at record rates.

Join us for an informative discussion in which Karen Reynolds Sharkey, National Business Owner Strategy Executive, Bank of America Private Bank, will speak to the findings from Bank of America Private Bank's newest white paper, Women's Entrepreneurial Journeys: Profiles in leadership in an era of new opportunities, which examines whether there is something distinct about how women approach entrepreneurship, create and direct wealth, and define success. Following, you will hear from a panel of successful women business owners and leaders who will provide insights about their journeys to success in creating wealth and growing their businesses.
