

Alternative and Renewable Energy

The need to embrace alternative and renewable energy initiatives in the United States is clear. This quickly growing industry represents possible solutions to some of our country's most pressing problems, including our current economic status and our dependence on fossil fuels. Situated as we are in the New Jersey/Pennsylvania/Delaware region, which is one of the nation's leading areas in solar installations, Flaster Greenberg is familiar with the progress of national alternative and renewable energy projects around the country, as well as those in this region. Our team is poised to assist with a full scope of legal, regulatory and planning services, responsive to the unique needs of the alternative and renewable energy industry.
