

'Slowly and Cautiously': Flaster Greenberg's Strategy to Reopen in the World of COVID-19

The Legal Intelligencer

June 9, 2020

Erica Silverman

Flaster Greenberg's Managing Shareholder, Alan Zuckerman, recently shared the firm's carefully designed strategy to reopen its physical offices and operate safely as the COVID-19 economic recovery progresses. Flaster, headquartered in Cherry Hill, is a midsize commercial business law firm with about 50 attorneys. The firm also has offices in Princeton and Linwood, as well as in Pennsylvania, New York, Delaware and Florida. The firm represents businesses, such as technology companies, manufacturers, commercial real estate developers and health care providers, and also represents individuals in many matters, including estate planning, tax, and family law. Zuckerman is a corporate transactional and tax lawyer. The firm aims to open its New Jersey and Pennsylvania offices in mid-June.

Click here to read the article in its entirety, including Q&A.

ATTORNEYS MENTIONED

Alan Zuckerman