a live q&a webinar

Businesses everywhere are monitoring the COVID-19 Coronavirus pandemic and evaluating their short and long-term plans, including how to address their workforces, customers, operations, creditors, and vendors. As the country continues to comply with federal and state recommendations to “flatten the curve” and implement the Families First Coronavirus Response Act (FFCRA), businesses are grappling with tough decisions about continuing operations and are left to wonder how best to manage employment issues in this unprecedented and changing landscape. To help address your most pressing questions regarding your workforce, Flaster Greenberg is hosting a live Q&A webinar to answer and discuss the issues that matter most to you.

Topics we anticipate to be covered include:

- Overview and changes to the FFCRA
- Remote workforce operations
- Available tax credits for employers and self-employed individuals
- FMLA eligibility
- Compensation issues for hourly employees, including paid time off usage and accruals
- What to do if an employee tests positive for COVID-19
- Collective bargaining agreements for unions
- Layoffs, furloughs, and WARN Act considerations
- Triaging payment of creditors
- Transacting with a distressed entity
- Workouts with landlords/tenants, lenders
- Navigating through the new economy-risks and opportunities
- Review of current governmental economic relief efforts
- And more...
