
Watching Out for the Bottom Line: Minimizing Liabilities and Reducing Project Costs

February 18, 2016

Brown & Brown Insurance, Fringe Benefit Group, GREYHAWK, Flaster Greenberg

Please join us on Thursday, February 18th at the Rutgers Eco-Campus in Bordentown for an insightful program that addresses the risk factors that all participants in construction projects may experience during the life span of a typical project. This program will provide practical analysis and useful tips that stakeholders can implement to recognize the potential risks before they occur, so as to minimize liabilities and reduce project costs. Our speakers will cover a wide range of issues including:

- Insurance coverage strategies to cover risks that cannot be avoided or shifted to another party
- Employee benefits plans for government contractors that meet Federal and State requirements and minimize risks of compliance/prevaling wage issues
- Effective planning and risk management from the start of the project to its finish
- Legal risks across the construction spectrum and ways to avoid them

Speakers:

- Matthew Hook, Executive Producer, Brown & Brown Insurance
- Tracy Carver, Regional Director, Fringe Benefit Group
- Charles Boland, Principal/Chairman, GREYHAWK
- Scott Hofer, Construction Lawyer and Shareholder, Flaster Greenberg PC

Moderator:

- J. Philip Kirchner, Shareholder and Chair, Commercial Litigation Department, Flaster Greenberg PC
