
Nonprofit & Charitable Organizations

Today more than ever before, charitable and/or nonprofit organizations face unprecedented challenges—challenges that not only impact every aspect of their service, but also may threaten their very survival. The cascade of events occurring in the corporate sector has dramatically affected entities that depend on others for a variety of needs. In addition to chronic concerns of funding and financial support, these organizations may be in unfamiliar territory when considering issues such as staff layoffs and reductions, drastic declines in the value of their endowments and investment portfolios, the new complexities in Board disclosure requirements and tax reporting and many others.

Founded as a tax and corporate law boutique, and now a full-service law firm, Flaster Greenberg is sensitive to these issues and has developed a wealth of experience in assisting charitable and nonprofit organizations, as well as individual philanthropists, corporations and private donors. In addition to tax and corporate advice, our Nonprofit and Charitable Organizations attorneys have evolved into a multidisciplinary team drawn from related areas of the firm, including labor and employment, real estate, securities, bankruptcy and litigation.

Strategic, Sophisticated Services

Our clients are a diverse blend of nonprofit and charitable organizations, as well as private philanthropists and corporate donors, including cultural and historical organizations, schools, colleges and universities, hospitals and medical research organizations, religious institutions, trade associations and community and civic groups.

Our assistance encompasses a comprehensive array of services executed by attorneys with many years of experience in the nonprofit sector. We are particularly strong in the area of developing innovative approaches to persistent needs, including funding and fundraising, and providing legal services consistent with the philanthropic mission of our clients. Members of our group have assisted nonprofit organizations with individualized strategies to increase or create sources of funding, while maintaining tax-exempt status. Our attorneys apply similar creative thinking and the benefit of their experience to the myriad of situations and circumstances unique to the nonprofit environment.
