Flaster Greenberg Recognized as a Philadelphia Inquirer Top Workplace for Second Consecutive Year

June 23, 2026

Flaster Greenberg is proud to announce that it has been named a 2026 Philadelphia Inquirer Top Workplace, marking the second consecutive year the firm has received this distinction.

The Top Workplaces award recognizes organizations that foster exceptional workplace cultures and is based entirely on employee feedback gathered through a confidential third-party survey. The survey measures key aspects of the employee experience, including engagement, alignment, leadership, connection, and workplace satisfaction.

"We are honored to once again be recognized as a Top Workplace by The Philadelphia Inquirer," said Steven Poulathas, Co-Managing Shareholder at Flaster Greenberg. "This recognition reflects the culture our attorneys and professional staff have built together, one grounded in collaboration, respect, professional growth, and a shared commitment to delivering outstanding service to our clients."

For more than 50 years, Flaster Greenberg has cultivated a workplace environment that values teamwork, innovation, inclusion, and community involvement. The firm's continued recognition underscores its dedication to supporting its employees while providing sophisticated legal counsel to businesses, individuals, and organizations throughout the region and beyond.

"Being recognized for a second consecutive year is particularly meaningful because it comes directly from the people who make our firm successful every day," added Jordan LaVine, Co-Managing Shareholder. "We remain committed to investing in our people and maintaining a culture where everyone has the opportunity to thrive."

The Philadelphia Inquirer Top Workplaces program celebrates organizations across the Philadelphia region that prioritize employee engagement and create environments where employees feel valued and empowered.
