

Time is Now for Tax Assessment Appeals

Press Release

February 28, 2011

Free seminars explain what to do if you are considering an appeal
Cherry Hill, NJ

March 10, 2011 8:30 a.m. Breakfast; 9-10:00 a.m. Program

Flaster Greenberg Conference Center, 1810 Chapel Avenue West, Cherry Hill

For owners of commercial or industrial property, there is no better time than the present to consider an appeal of your 2011 real estate tax assessment statement. Here is why:

- Property values are plummeting, but tax assessments are not
- There is a greater likelihood of over-assessment of commercial and industrial properties
- The value of comparable property may never be lower

Owners of commercial real estate such as office, industrial/warehouses, strip malls, multifamily properties, hotels and marinas, are invited to attend one of two area seminars examining the appeals process. Our program will explain how to decide if you should appeal, how changes in affordable housing laws may affect your tax assessment, and what to do next, along with a host of other information.

Presenters include real estate and tax attorneys Douglas S. Stanger, Mitchell R. Cohen, and Steven P. Poulathas and Jeffrey Lucas of Rose Commercial Real Estate.

For more information or to register, please click here.

ATTORNEYS MENTIONED

Steven Poulathas

Douglas Stanger