

Free Legal Seminars for Entrepreneurs Resume This Fall at Flaster Greenberg

Press Release

September 9, 2011

Cherry Hill, NJ

The Fall 2011 line-up in the "Legally Speaking" series, which is designed to help entrepreneurs plan, protect and grow a business, will consist of programs geared toward educating attendees in employment contracts, independent contractor status and business succession.

Presented by Flaster Greenberg in partnership with the Burlington County College High Technology Small Business Incubator, Rutgers-Camden Business Incubator, and Rutgers-Camden Small Business Development Center, the free "Legally Speaking" seminar series is intended to aid start-up and growing enterprises in their navigation of the business and legal terrains. The result is that entrepreneurs leave with valuable exposure to the legal nuances of operating a business while more seasoned business owners leave with a refresher on handling the important, yet potentially infrequent, issues they face.

Fall 2011 Seminar Schedule

All programs will be held from 8:00 to 10:00 a.m., in the Richard J. Flaster Conference Center at Flaster Greenberg, located at 1810 Chapel Avenue West, in Cherry Hill.

September 20, 2011

"Employees – A Company's Greatest Asset or The Enemy Within?"

Presented by Flaster Greenberg attorney Adam Gersh

October 4, 2011

"Employers: Misclassifying Employees as Independent Contractors"

Presented by Flaster Greenberg attorney Ken Gilberg

November 15, 2011

"What Every Business Person Must Know: Legal"

Presented by Flaster Greenberg attorneys Alexis Arena and Rachel Licausi

Continued

ATTORNEYS MENTIONED

Adam Gersh