

Frank Riesenburger to Speak at the Sustainability Symposium PA/NJ 2013

Press Release

February 14, 2013

Cherry Hill, NJ

Frank Riesenburger, Chair of Flaster Greenberg's Environmental and Real Estate Law Departments and Co-Chair of the Alternative and Renewable Energy Industry Group, has been asked to speak and lead discussions on electric vehicles at the Sustainability Symposium PA/NJ 2013, which will be held at the Temple University Performing Arts Center on March 12th. Riesenburger spoke at the 2011 and 2012 Symposiums, in which Flaster Greenberg participated and sponsored.

Now in its third year, this half-day conference will attract public officials, university professors, students, and business and community leaders. The conference will explore the latest developments in sustainability and will focus on cutting edge technology, renewable energy and offer tips on green building, while demonstrating how the local community and state and federal government are leading by example with green energy initiatives.

Workshops are organized into eight educational tracks that will run concurrently during the day, for a total of 24 separate classes covering diverse topics such as green schools, the business model for sustainability, Philadelphia cultural and sports institutions, LEED, commercial real estate owners and tenants, and electric vehicles.
