

Steven Poulathas to Co-Present NJICLE Webinar on the Tricky Tax Implications of Non-Salary Earnings

Press Release

January 20, 2014
Cherry Hill, NJ

Flaster Greenberg shareholder Steven Poulathas has been tapped by the New Jersey Institute for Continuing Legal Education (NJICLE) to co-present a webinar on the tricky tax implications of non-salary earnings. He will join co-panelist Martin H. Abo, CPA/ABV/CVA/CFF, Abo and Company, LLC, to discuss everything you need to know to deal with client income that isn't earned in a "traditional" or "common" way.

The presentation, entitled "Is it Income? The Tricky Tax Implications of Non-Salary Earnings," will highlight everything you need to know to handle income issues related to non-salary earning for your clients, including: employment and personal injury awards; lottery winnings; perks; tricky business earnings; tax treatment of attorney's "client costs advanced"; top areas to watch out for; potential areas of concern; new issues; client advances; and much more.

Steven Poulathas is a member of the Taxation, Business & Corporate, Healthcare and Trusts & Estates Practice Groups. He counsels and represents individuals and companies in tax planning, compliance and controversy for matters involving a broad range of corporate, partnership, limited liability company and real estate issues, including merger and acquisition agreements, legal opinions, private letter rulings and SEC registration statements.

The webinar will take place on Tuesday, January 28, 2014 from 12:00 - 1:40 p.m. and has been approved for 2.0 New Jersey CLE credit hours. For more information, or to register, click here.
